The red is dense, little light penetrates it. It almost seems like it doesn't want to be discovered, playing a game of hide and seek. But the Nose is ready to investigate, curious. "It is actually very deep, the first notes that you take in are plums, cinnamon, and then aromas of cedar, blackcurrant leaves, hazelnut and a distant smokiness. It is beyond me this wine". "Ah, I know, without me you can't reach it!", muttered the Palate. "Here's a lovely dark body, sapid and textured, the plot flows seamlessly while still maintaining its secure binding, intertwining with more intense chapters and finishing with an enjoyable ending".
